

KORNILOFF DISMISSED; HEADS RUSSIAN REVOLT

KERENSKY OUSTS ARMY CHIEF WHO PLOTTED TO SEIZE REINS; MARTIAL LAW IN PETROGRAD

Premier Discloses Conspiracy to Get Control of Both Military and Civil Government—Many Persons Directed to Leave Capital

PETROGRAD, Sept. 10. A new revolt, headed by General Korniloff, who is defying Premier Kerensky's order removing him from command of the army, has developed here, and the situation has become more acute than at any time before since the outbreak of the revolution.

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD

PETROGRAD, Sept. 10. A state of war was proclaimed in Petrograd today as preparations were begun for the partial civil evacuation of the capital.

Premier Kerensky in a proclamation announced the dismissal of General Korniloff as commander in chief of the Russian armies. General Klembovsky was named in his place.

The proclamation revealed a plot by Korniloff to assume control of the Government.

Kerensky demanded that Korniloff not only resign, but that he quit the Russian army at once.

Klembovsky will act as "provisional commander in chief," it was announced. Kerensky's proclamation of a state of war in the capital was made necessary by adoption of stringent new regulations for the public order.

Lack of adequate arrangements for provisioning the city, the general unrest felt over the Germans' success at Riga, the enemy's plan for advance on Petrograd and a redoubled campaign by German propagandists have all resulted in great tension in the Russian capital.

There have been numerous explosions in munitions factories. Special guards were put over all such plants today and drastic regulations announced for all industries.

All members of the Cabinet are now at army headquarters in conference over the military situation.

Premier Kerensky and General Korniloff have been at odds since the Moscow conference. Korniloff at that time demanded institution of virtually every rule of the old autocratic army regulations, and particularly insisted on restoration of the death penalty.

He declared Russia could only be saved through violent strengthening of her armies, and that this could only come about through enforcement of the most drastic disciplinary measures. A temporary truce between the army commander-in-chief and the Premier was arranged shortly after the Moscow meeting, Kerensky agreeing in part to institution of the death penalty.

On Saturday former Premier Lvoff, in Korniloff's name, demanded that Kerensky turn over full power, both military and civil, to the army head. Kerensky refused, and Korniloff's dismissal followed.

EVACUATION ORDER EXPLAINED. Minister of the Interior Avsentoff today issued the following official explanation of the decree ordering all civilians not engaged in business to leave Petrograd:

"This is by no means an evacuation nor a transfer of the capital. Despite the grave situation at the front there is no ground for rumors that the Germans are advancing to the northeast or nearing Petrograd from any other direction. The order to the civil population might be considered a piece of advice and no one is compelled to leave. It was given on account of the complicated transportation situation and the streams of refugees that are coming in from Livonia and Esthonia."

On Sunday representatives of all the Petrograd banks held a meeting and it was resolved that there is no necessity for the removal of the financial establishments to the interior of Russia. The same view is held by the big manufacturers.

It is said that a majority of the Ministers are against removing the Government into the interior; first, because they do not consider the capital endangered, and second, because this might cause an unreasonable panic. In any case, it is said the Government will take no steps for six weeks.

Yesterday was the semi-anniversary of the revolution, and an observance of it along violent lines had been threatened by the Maximilianists. The chief feature of the Maximilianist plan was some sort of a demonstration by the army against the Provisional Government, to which end the Maximilianists have conducted an energetic propaganda among the garrisons of the city.

TWO MEN SUFFOCATED TO DEATH IN SEWER

Two Others Who Went to Rescue Temporarily Overcome by Fumes

Two men were suffocated to death and two others were rendered unconscious this afternoon by escaping gas fumes while at work in a fifteen-foot sewer in the freight yards of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway, at the foot of Linden street, Camden.

The men overcame lost their lives in their anxiety to reach the men who were killed. They were later revived through the aid of the pulmonator. The dead are: JOHN E. BAUER, fifty years old, 2764 Emerald street, Philadelphia.

NICHOLAS DEMARINO, thirty-four years old, address unknown.

The men, who had a narrow escape, were removed to Cooper Hospital, Camden. They are Adam Sipple, fifty-six years old, 1208 East Cambria street, and Fred Benjamin, twenty-six years old, 781 East Allegheny avenue. Their condition is not serious.

Bauer and Demarino were repairing a pontoon float in the pit of a sewer in the railroad yards. A few minutes after descending in the sewer they signaled to Sipple and Benjamin to follow them.

Sipple was the first to make his way up a rope ladder. He had barely reached the floor of the sewer when he was overcome by the fumes. He was revived through the aid of the pulmonator.

DEMOCRATIZATION SURE

Sees Hopeful Parallel Between American Peace Plan and Reichstag's Formula

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 10.

The committee of fourteen appointed to pass on the draft of Germany's answer to Pope Benedict's peace note is scheduled to hold what may be its final session this afternoon, said a dispatch from Berlin. The committee is composed of seven members of the Reichstag and seven members of the Bundesrat.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.

President Wilson can bring immediate peace, if he will prove by acts the faith in the German people he has expressed in words. Philipp Scheidemann, leader of the German Socialist majority party, declared today in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

"Further bloodshed is now unnecessary if America believe in and does not underestimate the Reichstag's power and the strength of the German movement which pushes irresistibly toward democratization of the entire public life," Scheidemann asserted. "It is pushing on, although, as in America, war offers the worst chance for further developments of democratic institutions."

GERMAN REFORM TO QUICKEN

"The German advance will be quicker the sooner the obstacles of war are removed."

Special significance attaches to Scheidemann's view on the American note and as to Germany's democratization. The German Socialist majority leader is now at the head of a special committee charged by the Kaiser with investigating Germany's constitutional system and recommending reforms.

It was Scheidemann who fostered the plan for a Socialist-international meeting at Stockholm, in an effort to obtain a basis of mutual understanding. His interview was granted the United Press after detailed analysis of President Wilson's reply to Pope Benedict.

"The irritative tone of the American note," he said, "referring to this movement," "has been responded to in the same way by the greater part of the German press."

"But one in public life must be mindful of the English saying that words do not break legs."

U. S. AND THE REICHTAG

"I find the American Government phrases its war aims in such a way that it looks as if the Reichstag's peace formula had served as a base."
